Laurie Wallmark is an award-winning children's book author and computer scientist who has presented both locally (NJ/PA/NY) and at national conferences. She enjoys sharing her knowledge and experiences with others. Her talks are always both interesting and informative.

Listed below are a few of her presentation topics. You can find out more about Laurie, her talks, and her books at www.lauriewallmark.com

THE WRITER'S JOURNEY

What does it take to become a professional writer? Laurie shares the non-traditional steps she took on her own writing journey. She'll show the many possible paths to becoming a writer. Through the give and take of this presentation, attendees will come to understand both the work, and more importantly the fun, involved in being a writer.

MANY INTERESTS, MANY CAREERS

Many people assume the profession they enter after leaving college is the one they will pursue the rest of their life. That does not have to be case. Using her own life story as an example, Laurie will discuss the benefits and challenges of transitioning to a new career(s), either while actively working or after retirement.

WOMEN IN COMPUTING

In this presentation, Laurie talks about the lives and achievements of two women computer pioneers, Ada Byron Lovelace and Grace Hopper. She'll also share her own journey to becoming a computer scientist. Attendees will learn the vital, but mostly forgotten, role woman have played in the history of computing
